Show Synopsis

Princess and the Pea, Y'all pokes a little Southern-fried fun at the classic Hans Christian Andersen story of a kingdom in search of a "real" princess. Told using beautifully costumed hand puppets while incorporating live vocal characterizations, this one-man show is filled with sidesplitting slapstick comedy and witty word play courtesy of the Court Jester.

After several failed attempts at the Queen's "Princess-ness Test", it seems like young Prince Richard will never find a true princess to wed. But soon after he meets the beautiful Princess Gwendolyn he falls head-over-heels in love and announces his plans to marry her. The Queen Mother has other plans in mind for Princess Gwendolyn, but twenty mattresses later, even the Queen learns that appearances can be deceiving as she welcomes her new daughter-in-law to the family.

Yes of course, it's happily ever after, y'all in this delightful one-of-a-kind adaptation!

Grade Level Ideas

Activities

Preschool

- ◆ Click here to be directed to That Puppet Guy's website with learning extensions for this age group.

Kindergarten & First Grade

- ◆ Choose three fairy tales to read to the class. Emphasize the “Once upon a time” and “they lived happily after” beginnings and ends. After reading the stories, ask the class if they could tell they were fairy tales. Why or why not? What other things do fairy tales have in common?
- ◆ Once Upon a Time... Give each student a turn to name a person, place, thing or action and write the words down as you go. Use the collected words to write your own class fairy tale.
- ◆ Popular Letter “P”- Beginning and Ending Sounds (page 8)

Second & Third Grade

- ◆ People haven't always slept in beds like the ones we use today. Find out how beds have changed throughout history and about beds in other countries. Find out the names for different parts of a bed.
- ◆ Exhibit “Fairy Tale Museum”. Have each student bring in an item from a fairy tale. A pea would be a starting point, but they will need to use their imaginations to find a glass slipper, a lock of Rapunzel's hair or the Three Little Pig's building materials. Display and label the artifacts. Give guided tours to other students.
- ◆ Stacked Up Subtraction - Math Facts (page 9)

Fourth & Fifth Grade

- ◆ There is a very famous statue of a mermaid in Copenhagen harbor. It was erected in honor of Hans Christian Andersen. Read some more of his fairy tales and then have your students design a statue in his honor. Display the drawings. You may wish to make actual models of the statues using modeling clay.
- ◆ Could you detect a pea under your bed? Design the bed of the future— what new features would it have? Label and describe each feature.
- ◆ The princess had to pass a test to prove her princessness. Do your students know any other stories where a test has to be passed? Can they come up with any other tests that might prove a person's “princessness? Put their ideas together in a book which can be read by all. Your students can re-tell the story of Princess and the Pea, Y'all by putting on their own puppet shows.

LIVE PERFORMANCE ETIQUETTE

Going to see a live performance is not like watching television or seeing a movie. The artists on stage can see and hear everything that the audience is doing. These performers have worked very hard to provide an enjoyable, entertaining show. Let them know through your actions that you appreciate this. Also, your behavior affects the experience of everyone around you. So respect the other audience members by following the few simple guidelines listed below.

Did you Know?

Stage performers tell each other to "break a leg" before a performance because superstition says that it is bad luck to wish a performer "good luck" before a show!

Thumbs Up !

- Arrive early
- Turn off phones, watch alarms & anything else that would disrupt the show
- Use the restroom before the show
- Applaud where appropriate, after a well-performed song or dance, and at the end of an Act or scene, Also at a curtain call when the performers are taking a bow
- Laugh or giggle politely where appropriate
- Watch closely and listen carefully

Thumbs Down!

- No photos or video
- Do not whisper, talk, sing or hum during the performance
- Do not eat or drink during the performance
- Do not put your feet on the seat in front of you
- Do not boo, heckle or shout during the performance
- Do not leave the theater until the actors have left the stage

STYLES OF PUPPETRY

Body Puppets Body puppets are exactly what they sound like. They are larger-than-life and the puppeteer, or sometimes two, are actually inside the puppet. Body puppets can be very simple, like a large costume, or very sophisticated, employing video cameras and robotics. Sesame Street's Big Bird is probably the most recognized body puppet!

Hand Puppets Hand Puppets are puppets that cover the puppeteer's hand. They can either have a moving mouth or not. Hand puppets, or glove puppets as they are sometimes called, cover the puppeteer's hand so that the head is moved by the index finger and the arms moved by the thumb and middle finger. Hand puppets are part of a Chinese puppet tradition.

Rod Puppets are puppets that are controlled entirely by control rods, or sticks. These rods are often attached to both hands with a third rod that is attached inside the head to allow the puppeteer to turn the head or move it up and down. While the puppeteer provides the voice, without a moving mouth much of the puppet's character is expressed through exaggerated movements and actions.

Marionettes (string puppets)

Marionettes are considered the most difficult of all puppets to master. They consist of a full bodied character whose head, arms and legs are jointed to allow full movement. These are each connected by heavy thread to a cross shaped controller (called an airplane) that is held in one hand by the puppeteer. By moving the airplane controller and using the free hand to manipulate individual threads, the puppet can be made to walk, jump, dance, or run. The puppet is always controlled from above. Some stages even have bridges built across them to allow the puppeteer to move back and forth across the scene without ever being seen. A very famous marionette scene was in the movie The Sound of Music, in which Julie Andrews sang a song while marionette

Shadow Puppets When most people think of shadow puppets they picture making a simple bird or dog shadow on a wall with their hands. Actually, shadow puppets can be quite complex. Originating in Indonesia, shadow puppets are often made from dried animal skins which are cut out in very ornate patterns and shapes. Because shadow puppet shows are usually performed at night, they are often considered to be "adult" themed and not suitable for children to attend. Audience members may sit in front of the shadow screen to watch the show, or they may sit behind the screen and see the puppets in the bright light and not as shadows at all!

That Puppet Guy, Lee Bryan manipulates both glove-style hand puppets and rod puppets to tell the story of the Princess and the Pea, Y'all.
